

Increasing Trade Deficit in India

Why in news?

\n\n

Ministry of Commerce and Industry stated that India's trade deficit has increased.

\n\n

What is trade deficit?

\n\n

\n

- A trade deficit is an economic measure of international trade in which a country's imports exceeds its exports.

\n

- A trade deficit represents an outflow of domestic currency to foreign markets.

\n

- It is also referred to as a negative balance of trade (BOT).

\n

- Trade Deficit = Total Value of Imports - Total Value of Exports

\n

\n\n

What is the status of India's trade deficit?

\n\n

\n

- The Trade deficit of India for February 2018 was estimated at $11,979.21 million, 25.8 per cent higher than the $9,521.73-million deficit reported during February 2017.

\n

- Exports from the country rose 4.48 per cent in dollar terms during February this year compared to the same month of the last fiscal.

\n

- But, in rupee terms, export growth was flat with a mere 0.27 per cent rise, reflecting a dip in value of the Indian currency.

What is the reasons behind the increasing trade deficit?

\n\n

\n

- In recent years there is an increase in imports of petroleum, crude & products, electronic goods, machinery, electrical & non-electrical, pearls, precious & semi-precious stones and coal, coke & briquettes among others.
- India's crude oil import bill during February 2018 stood at $10,194.33 million, 32.05 per cent higher than the import bill of February 2017 on the back of a recovery in crude prices.
- This is also because the Global crude oil prices have increased 17.90 per cent in February 2018 compared to February 2017.

\n

\n\n

What are the implications for India?

\n\n

\n

- For India economic growth is on the back of higher exports of petroleum products, organic and inorganic chemicals, drugs and pharmaceuticals, rice and electronic goods.

\n

- Exports during February 2018 has increased when compared during February 2017.

\n

- But increasing deficit had weakened Indian currency, as the pace of overall exports has slowed down in February 2018 which is distressing.

\n

- It is even more disconcerting that Indian exports faltering when the global economy is on an uptick.
