

India's Afghanistan Strategy

Why in news?

\n\n

- \n
- The government has plans to train Afghani police officers in India.
- \n
- This expanded security assistance to Kabul also sends a strong geopolitical message to various stakeholders.
- \n

\n\n

What is Afghanistan's position?

\n\n

- \n
- The country saw the highest civilian casualties last year since the 2001 U.S.-led invasion.
- \n
- Increasingly, these casualties are coming not from Afghanistan's border areas but its cities and villages.
- \n
- Only a professionally trained police force can maintain peace in such situations.
- \n
- India has also announced 116 smaller "new development projects" across Afghanistan.
- \n
- Hence, a Police force with strong fundamentals also becomes mandatory for protecting such projects in irrigation, housing and schools from the terror groups.

What geo-political message does India convey?

\n\n

\n

- For Afghan - India plans to expand its security assistance to Afghanistan by training police officers, as part of a UNDP project.

\n

- This indicates a continued commitment for Afghan's security & stability by active capacity building.

\n

- For Pakistan - and other countries in the region that deal with the Taliban, India's action conveys that it will not be deterred.

\n

- This is reinforced by New Delhi's decision to send engineers to refurbish several non-functional Soviet-era planes and to repair the helicopters that India donated to Afghanistan last year.

\n

- For U.S - and its NATO allies, India makes it clear that will play a part in putting Afghanistan back on its feet in its own way.

What message does Trade convey?

\n\n

\n

- The decision to enhance security training comes on the heels of an India-Afghanistan trade fair in Delhi.

\n

- Regardless of actual transactions made, it will demonstrate a determination in exploring business possibilities.

\n

- Overcoming transit obstacles posed by Pakistan will be discussed.

\n

- The India-Afghan-Iran trilateral arrangement to circumvent geographical hurdles and the commitment to complete the 'Chabahar port' development project soon is another reassurance.

\n

- A sustainable trade route from South Asia to Central Asia is therefore clearly in the making.
