

Open camps for Sterilisation

Why in news?

\n\n

\n

- Over 27 months after 13 women died and 65 took ill at a State-run mass sterilisation camp in Chhattisgarh.

\n

- Following this, the State government has now discontinued all sterilisation services.

\n

\n\n

What was the recent move?

\n\n

\n

- Open camps were discontinued.

\n

- The doctor who performed the surgeries has been terminated and representatives of the pharmaceutical company which supplied the medicines are in jail.

\n

- These moves are taken as per the recommendations of a judicial commission headed by retired district judge Anita Jha

\n

\n\n

What is the effect of it?

\n\n

\n

- Health facilities, including district hospitals have also stopped sterilisations.

\n

- Instead of providing quality sterilisation services in the aftermath of so many deaths, the government has responded by discontinuing the services.

\n

- As a result of discontinuing them, women have turned to private clinics for family planning.

\n

- It costs around Rs. 8,000- 10,000.

\n

- Those who couldn't afford are required to go to neighbouring Jharkhand and Madhya Pradesh.

\n

- Tribal areas have suffered the most.

\n

- Since the discontinuation of open camps, sterilisation rates in Chhattisgarh for both men and women have dropped drastically.

\n

\n\n

What should be done?

\n\n

\n

- It has been a long-standing demand of the health movement in India that open camps be discontinued.

\n

- However, they have to be replaced by adequate facilities at CHCs and district hospitals.

\n

- It needs to be accompanied by awareness on male contraceptive methods such as condom use and vasectomy.

\n

- Family planning is equally a men's issue.

\n

- But currently there is no stress or campaign on male contraception.

\n

- The government does not persuade men into sterilisation the way it does for women.

\n

- The tragedy in Chhattisgarh was a wakeup call.

\n

- It showed that there is high demand, especially among women, despite bad quality services.

\n

- Therefore government should respond by providing quality services to men and women, rather than withdrawing the existing services.

\n

\n\n

\n\n

Source: The Hindu

\n

IAS PARLIAMENT

Information is Empowering

A Shankar IAS Academy Initiative