Advance Pricing Agreement (APA)

\n\n

\n

- An APA is a contract, usually for multiple years, between a taxpayer and at least one tax authority specifying the pricing method that the taxpayer will apply to its related-company transactions.

\n

- It was introduced in IT act, 2012.

\n

- It helps taxpayers voluntarily resolve transfer pricing disputes in a cooperative manner reducing the incidence of double taxation.

\n

- It also involves resolving both the future and existing transfer pricing audits and adjustments.

\n

- It fosters a non-adversarial tax regime.

\n

- The Indian APA programme has been appreciated nationally and internationally for being able to address complex transfer pricing issues in a fair and transparent manner.

\n

- Unilateral APA – It involve agreements between only the taxpayer and one government.

\n

- Bilateral APA – Tax payer enter into APA with more than one tax authority.

\n

- Transfer Pricing - A transfer price is the price at which different divisions of a same company transact good or services with each other.

\n

- Transfer pricing are used when individual entities of a large multi-entity firm are treated as separately run entities.
