FCRA

The Centre suspended the Foreign Contribution Regulation Act (FCRA) licence of the think tank Centre for Policy Research (CPR).

- The Foreign Contribution Regulation Act (FCRA) was enacted during the Emergency in 1976.
- The law sought to regulate foreign donations to individuals and associations.
- The act ensures them to function in a manner consistent with the values of a sovereign democratic republic.
- 2010 amendment - It was to consolidate the law on utilisation of foreign funds, and to prohibit their use for any activities detrimental to national interest.
- 2020 Amendment - The government was given tighter control and scrutiny over the receipt and utilisation of foreign funds by NGOs.
- Registration - FCRA registrations are granted to individuals or associations that have definite cultural, economic, educational, religious, and social programmes.
- NGOs that want to receive foreign funds must apply online and the Ministry of Home Affairs (MHA) makes inquiries through the Intelligence Bureau.
- The MHA is required to approve or reject the application within 90 days.
- Criteria - The FCRA requires every person or NGO seeking to receive foreign donations to be registered under the Act and open a bank account for it in State Bank of India, Delhi.
- NGO's should utilise those funds only for the purpose for which they have been received and as stipulated in the Act.
- They are also required to file annual returns, and they must not transfer the funds to another NGO.
- Validity - FCRA registration is valid for 5 years.
- Renewal - Can be renewed within six months of the date of expiry of registration.
- In case of failure to apply for renewal, the registration is deemed to have expired.
- Cancellation - For violation of the Act, defunct or misutilisation of foreign funds.
- Once the registration of an NGO is cancelled, it is not eligible for re-registration for 3 years.
- Suspension - The ministry also has powers to suspend an NGO's registration for 180 days pending inquiry, and can freeze its funds.
- All orders of the government can be challenged in the High Court.

Anti-defection Law

The Constitution Bench was hearing political dispute in Maharashtra held that Anti-defection law applies even if a faction splits from a party.

- The anti-defection law was added by 52nd Constitutional Amendment Act as the Tenth Schedule in 1985.
- Its purpose was to bring stability to governments by discouraging legislators from switching parties.
- It was a response to the toppling of multiple state governments by party-hopping MLAs after the general elections of 1967.
- The anti-defection law punishes individual MPs/MLAs for leaving one party for another.
- Deciding Authority - The Presiding Officers of the Legislature (Speaker, Chairman).
- The decision can be challenged before the higher judiciary.
- The law contemplates two kinds of defection:
 1. by a member voluntarily giving up membership of the party on whose symbol he got elected
 2. by a member violating a direction (whip) issued by his party to vote in a particular way or to abstain from voting
- Split - If one-thirds of a legislature party leaves it or joins another party, it amounts to a 'split'.
- Originally, in the 10th Schedule a 'split' in a legislature party is an exception to the disqualification rule.
- This was deleted by the Constitution (91st Amendment) Act, 2003.
- Exemption- The law allows a group of two-third MP/MLAs to join (i.e. merger) another political party.
- The merger has to take place between 2 parties and after that, two-third of the members, if they agree with the merger, then they are exempted from disqualification.
- SC observation - The anti-defection law applies even if a faction splits from a political party and manages to cobble up a majority within the party itself.
- Irrespective of the faction being majority or minority, anti-defection law applies.

Ornamental fish aquaculture and Agatti Island

Community-based ornamental fish aquaculture, using local resources, is expected to help women in the Lakshadweep islands.

- Women in the islands have limited resources to generate income, mostly in the form of coconut and tuna fish.
- To expand the activity and enhance the income of women, community-based breeding of marine ornamentals is done.
- Aquaculture - It is a first-of-its-kind experiment in community-based breeding and sale of ornamental fish, including shrimps.
- In addition to the 2 species of ornamental shrimps, captive-raised clownfish seeds were also supplied to the groups for further rearing.
- Islanders mostly women, were chosen for intensive training and have formed them into groups for ornamental fish aquaculture.

- Support - The ICAR-National Bureau of Fish Genetic Resources (NBFGR) maintains a germplasm resource centre for marine ornamental organisms on Agatti Island for conservation.
- NBFGR provides the technical support for the clusters.
- NBFGR also gives capacity building and hand-holding community aquaculture units maintained by local women.
- The NBFGR project team on Agatti Island will monitor the units and provide technical inputs, till the organisms reach the marketable size.
- The aquaculture is done in an environment-friendly manner by using coconut fronds and leaves as well as deploying solar panels.

Agatti Island

- Agatti, a 5.6 km long island in Lakshadweep is in the Laccadive group.
- Agatti Island is the gateway to Lakshadweep.
- Agatti is a small chain of islands that lies about 459 km off Cochin from the mainland and the nearest island is Bangaram.
