Three-spined stickleback fish:

\n\n

\n

- The three-spined stickleback fish is endemic to most inland coastal waters north of 30°N.

\n

- It is very tolerant of changes in salinity and most populations are Anadromous.

\n

- It is found abundant in Alaska Lake-Aleknagik.

\n

- Recent Global Climate change prompts the fish to change its breeding behavior.

\n

- It breeds earlier and more often each season in response to earlier spring ice breakup and longer ice-free summers. Thus it breeds more often in a single year.

\n

- Thus the emergence of multiple breeding in a vertebrate as a response to climate change is seen for the first time.

\n

- An Anadromous fish lives in seawater but migrates to freshwater for spawning i.e breeding.

\n

- Catadromous fish migrate from fresh water down into the sea to spawn.

City Momentum Index:

\n\n

- It is released by Jones Lang LaSalle, a real estate services firm headquartered at Illinois, US.
- The Index identifies dynamic cities across the world and it is being discussed at World Economic Forum held at Davos this year.
- Dynamic cities are those that share the ability to embrace technological change, absorb rapid population growth and strengthen global connectivity.
- It also considers socio-economic factors of GDP, population, air traffic, foreign direct investment, growth of commercial real estate, innovation capacity and technological process, access to education, and environment quality.
- According to the index, Bengaluru has been ranked the most dynamic city in the world. It is followed by Ho Chi Minh City in Vietnam and Silicon Valley in the United States.
- The only other Indian city in the top 10 with Hyderabad at the fifth spot.
