

Re-oriented Approach to Address Farmer Distress

What is the issue?

\n\n

Union government is working on re-oriented approach to address farmer distress apart from loan-waivers.

\n\n

What were the issues with India's agriculture policy?

\n\n

\n

- India's agriculture development policies earlier revolved largely around the "economic" aspect of agriculture and the "people" aspect got less attention.
- Earlier strategy for development of the agriculture sector in India has focused primarily on raising agricultural output and improving food security.
- The loan waivers, while consuming substantial fiscal resources, end up benefiting less than 10 per cent of the deserving farmers.
- Various experience shows that in some cases, growth in output brings similar increase in farmers' income but in many cases farmer's income did not grow much with increase in output.
- By this the sectoral outputs and crop production grew considerably, the condition of farmers did not show proportionate improvement.

What is government's re-oriented approach on agriculture?

\n\n

\n

- Increased Investments - Capital investments in agriculture have been stepped up by around 75 per cent from around Rs. 1.21 lakh crore during 2009-14 to around Rs. 2.11 lakh crore during 2014-19.
\n
- Most of these investments are targeted to improve critical infrastructure deficits such as storage, irrigation and logistics and modernize agriculture technology.
\n
- Increased Incomes - Doubling the income of farmers in a time-bound manner has been adopted as a stated objective.
\n
- A judicious multi-pronged strategy has been put in place for realising this goal.
\n
- PM-AASHA - Pradhan Mantri Annadata Aay Sanrakshan Abhiyan initiative comprises three different options to help farmers realise benefits of the increased MSP even where government agencies fail to procure their produce.
\n
- These strategies are being complemented by measures to enhance farmers' access to markets and protect them from inherent risks that agriculture faces.
\n
- Increasing Market Access - To assure market access to farmer government as introduced an agri e-marketplace (e-National Agriculture Market or e-NAM).
\n
- This marketplace integrates 585 agricultural mandis spread across 16 states and two union territories into one platform.
\n
- Crop Security - Low cost insurance plan called Pradhan Mantri Fasal Bima Yojana (PMFBY) was launched to protect farmers against various risks.
\n

\n\n

What is the way forward?

\n\n

- By bringing farmers and their families onto the policy Centre stage, the government is not only trying to assure incomes, but it is also trying to create a safety net for them.
\n

- Increase in the MSP, and implementation of PM-AASHA, PMFBY and e-NAM are integral components of this strategy.
\n
- In addition to these, efforts are also being made to provide basic essentials such as house, electricity, toilets and clean cooking gas to the needy households in rural areas.
\n
- Include these, and one can visualize the various contours of the larger development program being rolled out for farmers.
