Special Provisions of States

Why in news?

After Supreme Court upheld the validity of abrogation of Article, certain features of asymmetric federalism like Article 371 and Article 239A in Indian Constitution have come to limelight.

What is the nature of relationship between the centre and states in India?

- Quasi-federal - While states do have autonomy, the Constitution tilts towards the Centre on certain areas.
- 7th Schedule of the Constitution - It contains the Union, State and Concurrent lists that prescribe subjects that the Centre and states are empowered to legislate upon.
 - Both the Centre and state can legislate upon those in the concurrent list, the Union law would prevail in case of a conflict between the law made by Parliament and the state legislature.
- Asymmetric federalism - All Indian states are not given equal status considering various factors, ranging from the fiscal, political and the administrative features.
- Several states enjoy varying degrees of autonomy and relationship with the Centre.
 - Article 371 - It deals with 12 states for better governance and political administrations.
 - Article 239A - It deals with the creation of local legislature for Union territory of Puducherry.
 - Article 239AA - It deals with national capital territory of New Delhi (NCT) which has the powers to legislate upon subjects in the state and concurrent lists in the 7th Schedule.

What are the special provisions under Article 371?

- History - It did not exist in the original constitution but have been incorporated subsequently by various amendments.
- Incorporation - Like Article 370, Article 371 is also became a part of the Constitution since January 26, 1950.
- Articles 371(A-J) were incorporated through amendments under Article 368, which lays down the power of the Parliament to amend the Constitution and procedure therefor.

- Constitution - Article 371 to 371-J in Part XXI of the constitution titled 'Temporary, Transitional and Special Provisions'.
- Objective
 - To meet the aspirations of the people of backward regions of the states.
 - To protect the cultural and economic interests of the tribal people of the states
 - To deal with the disturbed law and order condition in some parts of the states
- Validity - All these exceptions would be operable till the crisis, either secessionist sentiments or war ceases.
- Despite the 'temporary' tag, there isn't any explicit expiry date.

What are the states that have special provisions under Article 371(A-J)?

- Article 371 - Maharashtra and Gujarat
- Governor has special responsibility to establish separate development boards for Vidarbha, Marathwada, and the rest of Maharashtra, and Saurashtra and Kutch in Gujarat.
- Article 371A (13th Amendment Act, 1962) - Nagaland
