

The Ashoka Vijaya Dashami Controversy

What is the issue?

A political row erupted after a clip of Delhi minister Rajendra Gautam attended a mass conversion gathering where people took the 22 vows.

How did the Buddhist Conversion Day evolve?

- In 1935, Ambedkar, as president of the 'Yeola Conversion Conference' near Nasik, announced his decision to renounce Hinduism to contest the Hindu caste order.
- He advised the members from the depressed castes to leave Hinduism and embrace another religion.
- After 2 decades, he reached a conclusion that Buddhism is an appropriate choice as
 - It had challenged the Brahmanical caste-based social hierarchies in the past
 - It focused on modern ethical values and a scientific temperament
 - It preached peace and compassion for social coexistence
- Under the presence of monk Chandramani, Ambedkar and his wife took the Buddhist vows and embraced Buddhism at Nagpur's Deekshabhoomi.
- He then recited the three jewels (Trisharan), five precepts (Panchsheel), pronounced the self-crafted 22 vows and renounced Hinduism.
- The event is marked as the renaissance of Buddhism in India.
- Ambedkar called his version of Buddhism Navayana (followers are called neo-Buddhists), differentiating it with the Mahayana and Vajrayana traditions of Buddhism.

What is the present controversy about?

The Buddhist population in India is a mere 0.70%, of which 87% are neo-Buddhists. Around 80% of it reside in Maharashtra.

- Every year, Dussehra is also celebrated as Ashoka Vijaya Dashami to commemorate Buddhist Conversion day.
- Recently, Rajendra Pal Gautam, a Minister in the Aam Aadmi government, participated in a public meeting organized to commemorate Buddhist Conversion Day in his personal capacity.
- Along with the thousands of people assembled, he recited the 22 vows, which is part of the ritual.
- The ruling party accused Mr. Gautam of spreading anti-Hindu sentiments and sought the resignation of Chief Minister Arvind Kejriwal.
- Mr. Gautam resigned from his post following the uproar.

Why are the 22 vows controversial?

- The 22 vows refer to a list of pledges Ambedkar had prescribed to his followers after converting from Hinduism to Buddhism on 14 October, 1956 in Nagpur.
- The vows are divided into three major sections.
 - First part- It pledges to refuse to worship the Hindu pantheon or to follow Hindu religious dogmas (vows no. 1, 2, 3, 5 and 21).
 - Second part- It challenges the authority of the Brahmin priest (vows no. 4, 6, 8 and 19).
 - Third part- The rest promises to follow Buddhist principles.

How about Ambedkar as a revolutionary social reformer?

- Caste- Ambedkar's writings on social questions offer intellectual and critical inquiry about the problems of an exploitative Hindu caste order.
- He wanted to liberate socially marginalised communities from the stranglehold of caste.
- Untouchability- He wanted to end the inhuman practice of untouchability.
- Religion- His academic work is well-known for the scrutiny of Hindu philosophical texts.
