

The Marriage Bill

Why in news?

\n\n

The Marriages (Compulsory Registration and Prevention of Wasteful Expenditure) Bill was introduced by private members in the Lok Sabha.

\n\n

What is a private member's bill?

\n\n

\n

- Members of parliament other than ministers are called private members and bills presented by them are known as private member's bills.

\n

- It can be introduced only with one month's prior notice.

\n

- Money bill cannot be introduced by a private member, but a constitutional amendment bill can be introduced by a private member.

\n

- Till date, only 15 private members' bills have ever been passed by the Indian Parliament. Six of these were in 1956 alone.

\n

- The Rights of Transgender Persons Bill passed in 2015 was the first private member's bill to get the upper house's approval in the past 45 years.

\n

- In the current Lok Sabha, 588 private bills have already been introduced. Only 11 of them have actually come up for discussion.

\n

\n\n

What does the bill say?

\n\n

\n

- The aim of the bill is to “prevent extravagant and wasteful expenditure” in weddings.

\n

- The bill states that, if a family spends above Rs 5 lakh on a wedding, it should contribute 10% of that amount to a welfare fund that is to be used to facilitate marriages of girls from poor families.

\n

- It seeks to limit the number of guests one can invite and dishes that can be served in weddings.

\n

\n\n

What are the advantages?

\n\n

\n

- The intention behind is undoubtedly a noble one if the govt welfare fund stays free of corruption and mishandling.

\n

- It could provide the much needed relief to low income families in doing social justice to their key life events.

\n

- It will encourage simplicity because weddings in India perpetuates a negative social pressure of spending more to show value.

\n

- It would ease some pressure of the paying parties i.e usually the bride’s family, who could possibly be under pressure to spend beyond their comfort levels.

\n

- Much of the food and other perishables used in weddings so waste. This undermines the food security of the country.

\n

\n\n

What are the disadvantages?

\n\n

\n

- An enforcement on how to celebrate a wedding is not democratic in nature.

\n

- A legal solution for a social issue is often seen as an aggressive policy.
- It will be seen as unnecessary and unwarranted government interference in private affairs.
- The mandatory 10% contribution would be perceived as yet another tax levied on the citizens.
- The cap of 5 lakhs is a very low amount even to an average urban middle class standards.
- The enforcement of the law would also be extremely difficult as it is likely to result in complications of tracking expenses and thus evading the 10% payment.
- Regulations will be hard to manage and it will call for a significant state apparatus.
- The scope for loopholes is huge. e.g It would be difficult to distinguish weddings from engagements and receptions which are held at an earlier or later date.
- Some families see weddings as a perfect occasions for reunions and don't mind investing heavily for once in providing for their guests.
- The bill does not account for the fact that weddings are an economic activity for many who work in the supply chain towards organizing them.
