The Reichsburger Collective

Why in news?

In one of the largest ever counter-terrorist operations in Germany, the police had arrested 25 individuals of a far-right group (The Reichsbuenger), for plotting to violently overthrow the German state.

What is Reichsburger?

- Reichsburger - Reichsburger loosely translates to “Imperial Citizen” or “Citizens of the Reich”, the German Empire founded in 1871.
- They do not believe in the post-World War II Federal Republic of Germany and its legal system (Grundgesetz).
- The Reichsburger movement is not homogenous and consists of groups and individuals with varying beliefs, like far-right views, the superiority of race, and anti-Semitism (Any form of prejudice against the Jewish people).
- Some members believe Germany is still occupied and secretly run by western powers including the U.S., the U.K., and France.
- Reich citizens - They consider themselves citizens of the German Reich and not the Federal Republic.
- Selbstverwalter (self-governors) - They claim legal and territorial autonomy and the right to leave the State any point of time.
- Some people are followers of both ideologies.

REICHSBURGER MOVEMENT

Definition

“Reichsbürger” and “Selbstverwalter” (literally “citizens of the Reich” and “self-administrators”) are a loose collection of groupings and individuals, who, with different motives and on different grounds, reject the existence of the Federal Republic of Germany and its legal system.

Core beliefs/ideology

“Reichsbürger” typically claim that Germany is still occupied and controlled by the Allies and therefore not a sovereign state. They reject the German “Grundgesetz” (i.e. Basic Law) because it was never adopted by a popular referendum. Parts of the group claim that the “German Reich” still exists or strive to reinstate it. The movement includes right-wing extremists and commonly advocates antisemitic conspiracy theories.

Sympathisers

Threat

- 3,700+ extremist crimes attributed to the “Reichsbürger” scene since 2017
- 700+ of those crimes involved violence
- The group has been monitored by the German intelligence service since 2016

What strategies are employed by the Reichsburger?

- Sending letters to government agencies seeking confrontation
- Refuse to pay taxes
- Reject identity documents like passports issued by the Federal Republic of Germany
- Use modified car number plates and fantasy documents
- Declare their own national territories called the “Second German Empire,” the “Free State of Prussia” or the “Principality of Germania”
- Idea of applying for a certificate of citizenship called “Yellow certificate,” an official document issued by the Federal Republic of Germany that confirms German citizenship

- Displaying anti-Semitic behaviours such as blaming Jews for unemployment to Holocaust-denying conspiracy theories

What is the current trend of right-wing extremism in Germany?

- Current picture - The right-wing extremists attempted to gain mainstream acceptance by taking advantage of protests against government during the Covid-19 time.
- Several groups such as Kingdom of Germany, United German Peoples and Tribes (GdVuSt), etc. aims to propagate right-wing extremism in the country.
- The group, which consisted of members of a shadowy far-right movement had even set up a 'council' to take over.
- It has been reported that many Reichsbuerger are strongly influenced by QAnon, an American far-right political movement that conspired against Donald Trump during his tenure as President of the USA.
- Steps taken - Germany combats extremism through
 - Banning organisations - It weakens their structure and allows for the confiscation of financial and material resources
 - Banning controversial symbols and marks - Usage of certain symbols and signs, including those representing Nazism, is banned by law.
