Survey of River Ganga

- Survey of Ganga River was initiated by Wildlife Institute of India (WII) on behalf of the National Mission for Clean Ganga.
 - This is the first study ever done in the country on the entire river, and the first also of all its biodiversity.
 - The institute has been tracking biodiversity through some key aquatic and semi-aquatic species such as the Gangetic Dolphins, gharials, otters, turtles and various species of water birds.
 - Highlights of the Survey findings are as follows
1. Ganga river (main river without its tributaries), has found that 49% of the river has high biodiversity.
 2. 10% of the high biodiversity areas fall alongside national parks and sanctuaries such as Rajaji national park in Uttarakhand, Hastinapur wildlife sanctuary in UP and Vikramshila gangetic Dolphin sanctuary in Bihar.
 3. Increased biodiversity sightings, including of the Gangetic Dolphin and Otters, indicates reduced pollution levels and a healthier state of the river.
 4. Many species that used to be found in the main stem and had disappeared, are now coming back, Few such sightings are as follows
 - a. Nesting colonies of the Indian Skimmer found.
 - b. Seibold's, a species of water snake, disappeared 80 years ago and has now resurfaced.
 - c. New distributions of the puffer fish found.
 5. Many other species have started travelling back from tributaries to the main stem of the river indicating improving water quality and increasing Biodiversity.

Saffron Cultivation in North East

- Saffron is a plant whose dried stigmas (thread-like parts of the flower) are used to make saffron spice.

- India cultivates about 6 to 7 tonne of saffron while the demand is 100 tonne.
- To meet the growing demand of saffron the MoS&T through the Department of Science and Technology (DST), is now looking at extending its cultivation to some states in the Northeast.
- This is because there is a huge similarity of climate and geographical conditions between Kashmir and few regions of Northeast.
- Sikkim was first to implement the pilot project, and later it will be extended to Meghalaya and Arunachal Pradesh.
- North East Centre for Technology Application and Reach (NECTAR) is an autonomous body under the DST.
- NECTAR in collaboration with the Botany and Horticulture departments of Sikkim Central University implemented a pilot project in Yangyang village of South Sikkim.
- The Yangyang pilot project of saffron cultivation has yielded successful results, which produced its first crop of saffron recently.

Ideal Conditions for Saffron Cultivation

- In India, saffron Corms (seeds) are cultivated during the months of June and July and at some places in August and September, It starts flowering in October.
- Saffron grows well at an altitude of 2000 meters above sea level.
- It needs a photoperiod (sunlight) of 12 hours.
- It grows in many different soil types but thrives best in calcareous (soil that has calcium carbonate in abundance), humus-rich and well-drained soil with a pH between 6 and 8.
- For saffron cultivation, we need an explicit climatological summer and winter with temperatures ranging from no more than 35 or 40 degree Celsius in summer to about -15 or -20 degree Celsius in winter.
- It also requires adequate rainfall that is 1000-1500 mm per annum.

Pampore Saffron

- Saffron production has long been restricted to a limited geographical area in the Union territory of Jammu & Kashmir.
- Pampore region, commonly known as Saffron bowl of Kashmir, is the main contributor to saffron production.
- Pampore Saffron Heritage of Kashmir is one of the Globally Important Agricultural Heritage systems \(GIAHS\) recognised sites in India.
