

Merit over looks seniority in recent higher post common

"Merit over looks seniority in recent higher post"

Considering the present day problems and its complexities it is better (or) good that merit over-looks seniority. Considering the case of army.

Today modern security is facing variety and different kinds of problems like cybersecurity, infiltration, border security, etc. So to reduce all the menace obviously merit should be given priority in giving people higher post.

In army at the post of brigadier itself all brigadiers will be exposed to variety of problems so in that more efficient person should be

Chosen

Increase the pool :-

~~At the~~ ~~highest~~ ~~post~~ ~~of~~ ~~army~~ ~~staff~~ is selected from the commander post. But the problem here is in army many officers are getting voluntary retirement before at the earliest itself. ^{So} ~~and~~ less people are only becoming commander. The commander post is also very less.

Thus to select a more efficient person

Government should merge such intermediate post so that more talents could be examined and a more efficient person could be selected.

Transparent process needed

Not only in army but also in many other fields current government looks merit over seniority. It is good for our country only. But this process could be still refined by having a transparent selection/promotion process.

Conclusion

Of course at the highest level all are experience and all are talented otherwise they would not have reached that level. So the government should select them based on the current requirement and based on the current problems that our country is facing now and also by making the process more transparent.
